ASSYRIAN CULTURAL HERITAGE PAST AND PRESENT

BY DR. HELEN MALKO

Archaeologist & Research Associate Columbia University

Dr. Helen Malko holds a PhD in archaeology and anthropology from Stony Brook University. She has a master's degree in archaeology of Mesopotamia from Baghdad University, Iraq and a diploma in Historic Preservation from Rutgers University. She is currently a content manager for the website of the Columbia project "Mapping Mesopotamian Monuments" in the Department of Art History and Archaeology.

This project provides digital records for Mesopotamian standing monuments and facilitates future conservation work to preserve Mesopotamian cultural heritage as a significant part of global cultural heritage. In addition to her fieldwork in Turkey and Iraq, Dr. Malko coordinated and implemented the Iraq Museum Residency Program at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.
